AFFAIRS IN BROOKLYN.

A MINISTER AND HIS HELPER MISSING. GREENPOINT RELIGIOUS CIRCLES STIRRED BY

AN ALLEGED ELOPEMENT. The Rev. W. T. Gibbs, who founded the Greenpoint and Williamsburg Mission, at Macker ave., near Graham, four years ago, and Mrs. Alenzo Frost, the wife of a truckman living at No. 618 Humboldt-81., have been missing for nearly two weeks. Mrs. Frost was one of the workers in the mission, and is about forty-three years old. The sudden disappearance of the two has furnished much gossip for those living In the neighborhood, and some intimate that they have eloped. Gibbs is a converted actor and an agent for the Metropolitan Insurance Company, Frost, addition to being a truck driver, is engaged at night as a lighet taker at Harrigan's Theatre, New-York since 60bbs's disappearance his wife has re-ceived no word from him, and the husband of the also anxiously awaiting some tidings of his wife and eleven-year-old daughter. For several days after Gibbs's disappearance his wife carried on the work of the mission, but has since abandoned it. On the evening of April 19 there was a "love feast" at the mission as the ending of a ten-day revival service. Mr. Gibbs talked to the men and boys and exhorted the women and girls. and closed the proceedings with a prayer. He started The next day Frost called upon Mrs. Gibbs and asked her if she had seen his wife. Since then every effort has been made to find some trace of the missing persons, but without success. Two days before her disappearance Mrs. Prost, it is said, drew 8700 from the bank, which was ner share of her mother's estate.

ANOTHER ATTEMPT TO CONNECT TWO ROADS. An amended application was made by President Jourdan, of the Prooklyn and Brighton Beach Railroad Company, to the Aldermen yesterday for permission to extend the terminus of the road from Atlantic and Franklin aves to Fulton-st., Pranklin-ave., crossing Atlantic ave, and Lefferts Place by an elevated structure. This will connect the Brighton Beach Railroad with the Kings County elevated road in Fulton-st. President Jourdan sent a letter with the application calling attention to the fact that the matter had been before the Board for five months unacted upon. The application and the letter were referred to the Railroad Committee of the

TO TRY THE CELEBRATION FRAUD CASES. District-Attorney Ridgway announced yesterday that he had chosen the cases of Aldermen Heaney. Wafer and McKee, Plan Clerk Pigot, of the Building Department, and Patrick Ross, a buildings inspector, as the first to be tried of the persons indicted in connection with the Columbian expenditures of last fall. The cases will be called in the Court of Sessions on Monday of next week, and a panel of 350 jurors has been summoned. The case of Alderman Heaney will probably be called first. He is indicted for auditing four false and fraudulent bills against the city.

HE HAD BEEN BURIED IN THE POTTER'S FIELD. In March last Frederick Riecker, a well-known jeweller at No. 122 Broadway, Brooklyn, disappeared. Although every effort was made by his relatives and friends, they failed to learn where he was. All the hospitals in both cities were searched and the surgeons carefully watched. Among those who continued the search was Dr. Gustave C. Scholer, of the New-York Turnvereta. A few days ago he accidentally obtained the photographs of bodies that had been buried in the Potter's Field unidentified. Among them recognized that of the missing man. Further inquiries showed that Mr. Riecker, on the afternoon of March 14, had fallen or jumped from the platform of the Manhattan Elevated Railroad at Third-ave, and Seventy-sixth-st., New-York, and died in the Presbyterian Hospital a few hours later. Steps have been taken to have the body exhumed and decently buried. Mr. Riecker was about fifty years old and well to-do. at high tide. He was unmarried, and at one time was in business in Nassau-st., New-York, and for several years carried on the Jewelry business under the firm name of Stelnecke & Co., at No. 122 Broadway, Brooklyn. He was known to carry much jewelry and large sums of money with him, and an investigation was begun yes-terday by his friends, as to the disposal of his effects. It is said only $40 was taken from his pockets in the hospital, but neither Deputy Coroner Conway nor the hospital people are able to account for any more money or jewelry.

AGAINST THE CHARITIES COMMISSIONERS.

Judge Cullen handed down a decision in the Su-Commissioners of Charities and Correction for the vacation of the order of the Court which approved of the regulations adopted by the State Board of Com-missioners in Lunacy for the case of the Insane panpers who are county charges. The original order was made on the joint application of the State Commis slowers in Lunacy and the Charity Commissioners The principal regulation to which the Charlities Commissioners object is that which gives the medical superintendent power to appoint and discharge his assistants and the other employes in the insane asy-

MRS. EARLOW WILL MOVE TO PHILADELPHIA. Another chapter was added to the Barlow family troubles yesterday by the announcement that Mrs had disposed of her home at No. 178 Rutledgest., and will start to-day with her two daughters, Blanche and Grace, for Philadelphia, where she will live permanently. Mrs. Forbes, Mrs. Burlow's mother will accompany her. The Rutledge-st, house was sold on Wednesday last to Henry Borcher, a grocer at Lee ave. and Rutledge st. Although Mrs. Barlow is changing her home she will vigorously defend her husband's suit for absolute divorce.

A LECTURE ON RUSSIAN FOLK-SONGS. H. E. Krehbiel delivered a lecture last night be fore the Rembrandt Club on "The Folk-Russla." His exposition of the wierd melodies of the great northern race of Europe was listened to with rapt attention by a large andience. Mme, Lineff and her Russian choir illustrated the lecture with songs, and at the request of the club added two specim of the famous church compositions of Russia. It was the annual reception of the club, and it took place in the Art Association rooms, at No. 179 Montague st. At the close of the lecture General Woodward moved vote of thanks to Mr. Krebblel and his assistants, which was seconded by Colonel Chapman and eninsinstically carried. This is the close of a series of lectures on music which Mr. Krehbiel has been giving this season in various cities of the country

HE KNEW WHAT SHE WANTED

From The London Chronicle,

From The London Chronicle,

A very amusing incident occurred a few days ago at a large and well-known bookseller's not a hundred miles from Trafalgar Square. The manager of this business is famous among book buyers alike for his occurrecy and his wide knowledge of authors and their editions. So in cases of doubt be it nixays appealed to. On this occasion a distinguished-toohing lady and her daughter wanted a volume of Edward Lear's works, but were not quite certain which one.

"I feel sure, said the gentleman in question, "from what you say, that it is the old nursery raymes volume you wish—the one, you will of course remember, with the nonzense verses in it, such as There was an old hady of Leeds." Utilimately the book was found and the ladies left. Then the speaker suidenly recollected, to his inexpressible horror, that his visitor was no other than the Duchess of Leeds!

HE WAS OF A COURTEOUS DISPOSITION. From The London Globe.

There is a difference in circles, of course, but I have seen some curious illustrations of the divorce between religion and letters. I was once at dinner with a dignitary of the Church of England, and a writer who, though approaching "the sere, the yellow leaf," was like that had boy who never went to church in his life. Being of a most courteous disposition, however, and being also afflicted with a weakness for being thought omniscient, he lent an attentive car to certain remarks on hymms made by the other. "There is one," quoth le, "that I always love to hear sung during service—'How doth the little busy bee?" ills clerical acquaintance, with a "strong smile, immediately began to talk about Mr. Gladstone's love of old china, and took the earliest opportunity of saying to me, "I suppose Mr.—— never did go to churants." There is a difference in circles, of course, but I

THE SPANISH WARSHIPS STILL IN PORT.

FEW VISITORS TO THE FLEET-OFFICERS VEXED OVER THE PROPOSED CHICAGO TRIP-

ARRANGING FOR A BOAT RACE. The great fleet, unbroken in its ranks, lay anchored n the smiling waters of the North River yesterday. Owing to the strong tide which swept down between the high, embracing banks of the river there were few visitors aboard the chips, and the officers had a respite from idiotic questions. But they were none the less lonely and longed for a silvery voice to come and ask which end of the ship went first. The fact is that the officers of all the tons have been spotted, and uniess enraptured maidens fling tea leaves about them and inceuse them with the odors of the coffee-pot they are wretched. Still the saips were not without admirers, and all along the North River, from the foot of the column to the head thereof, there were enthusfastic spectators.. If the people could not go aboard the ships they could at least admire them from afar.

The officers of the fleet were more misty than the Hudsen all day as to what properly constituted their social duties. The University Club had invited them all to a reception, and Mr. and Mrs. Forbes Leith had also invited them to a reception. Several theatres had sent tickets aboard for boxes, which the officers ould occupy if they appeared in full uniform and behaved themselves properly during the performances. Now, every officer wanted to go to either the reception of the University Club or to the reception and ball which Mr. and Mrs. Forbes Leith gave in honor of Admiral Hopkins and the officers of the squadron, or to go to both if they could so arrange it. course the reception at the University Club was the minant thing in the minds of the officers, although they all wanted to drop in at the Forbes Leith ball. This is the first time that the University Club has ever given a reception to any person or to any set of people. The club had appropriated a large amount of money for the reception, and the officers of the fleet had been invited at a reasonable time in advance. Therefore they were all anxious to go, and casting aside the borrors of the mid-watch and forgetting for the time these routine duties which so horoughly occupy all the waking hours of naval officers, they did go, and many of them also went to the Forbes Leith ball. Both were delightful entertainments, and both were highly enjoyed by the

Owing to the weather yesterday, which was misty the Spanish fleet did not weigh anchor as had been announced. The Infanta Ysabel and Nueve Espana were to have started vesterday for Havana to meet there the Infanta Enlalle and her husband, Don At tonio, and bring them to New-York. The ships will fore they all remained at anchor yesterday. Today, if the Spiniards go to sea, the American vessels ordered to the Brooklyn and Norfolk Navy Yards will disappear and be known no more among the long-drawn lines of the international fleet in the American officers over the proposed trip to Chicago. That a private corporation should afford the facilities which they think ought to be extended by the Government, or by themselves, is not a pleasant subject of conversation, as he who approaches an officer on the subject will soon learn. the officer said: "When celebration, there were sixty ships of war of various nations there, and an officer could not even pay for tion finecially, too, gave us all that is meant by the phrase of spanish hospitality. The officers of the assembled fleet were taken to Madrid, and, in fact, everywhere else they wanted to go, at the expense of the spanish Government. Now, we Americans are placed in a position which is not at all pleasing. Either the officers of the American fleet or the United States Government should pay for the trip of the foreign officers to Chicago."

Vice President Webb, of the New York Central Railroad, said: "We have received no answer yet from the officers of the American fleet as to the proposed trip of the foreign naval officers to Chicago, train that ever ran on rails at the disposal of the There will be a consultation on Widnesday between Admiral Gherardi and the commanding officers of the fleet regarding the proposed trip to Chicago. Another thing that the American officers are angry about is he extortionate charges of the boatmen who are called apon now and then to row foreign officers and sailors from the dock to their ships. If an American comes boatman will take him off for 25, or at most 50 foreign ship appear, and the charge is from #2 to #5, as the heart of the boatman may be inclined. The fact that there is no way to prevent this extortion is what makes the American officers angry. When an American fleet has visited in state a foreign port, there have always been dockmasters, who regulated the charges of the boatmen and saw to It that the Americans were not overcharged.

There is to be a bout race Saturday between the oats of the foreign men-of-war in the harbor. It boats of the foreign men-of-war in the harbor. It will be a race of three miles straight away, and will be for gigs, entters and smaller boats, divided into classes. It was at first proposed to have the course down the line of anchored vessels, but on account of the prevalence of ceryboats and shadpoles in the lower part of the line, it was decided to have the course laid out further up the stream. So the finish of the race will be at about seveniteth-et, and the start three miles further up the river. The race will be started at 4 o'clock. After the foreign crews have finished racing, there will be a race between crews from the American ships. The American ofheres do not want to enter boats in the race, for the reason that the Americans possess an advantage in boats. Their racing-boats are of much lighter build than those of the foreigners, and it is believed by the Americans have much more speedy lines. Therefore to ask the foreign ships to enter a contest with the Americans would be like inviting a man to dimer and then eating it one's self. It is this reason-the idea that they would be taking an advantage of the visiting squadrons by entering their lighter boats, which has induced the Americans to decide not to enter the race. American officers will be the judges in the race.

There were no capsizes of shore boats, which has induced the Americans to decide not to enter the race. American officers will be the judges in the race.

There were no capsizes of shore boats, which has induced the Americans to decide not to enter the race. American officers will be the judges in the pace. There were no capsizes of shore boats, which have now had several weeks of being agreeable to people whom they did not know, and of having their floating homes turned into show places. Still they feel slighted if people do not come on board, and so everybody should go. The breaking up of the big fleet will begin to day if the weather is unitable. The officers of the Concord expect that their ship will be ordered to go to a Navy Yar will be a race of three miles straight away, and will

KNOCKED INTO THE RIVER BY A STEAMBOAT.

Two taborers were drowned yesterday and their of Fier 1, North River. Edward Bresiln and Jeremiah Healey were wheeling barrels of flour from the cars on a Philadelphia and Reading Railroad float at Pier 1. At 2:30 p. m. one of the Iron steamboats ran against the float. The Jar knocked Breslin and Healey into the water. The body of Healey was found at the other side of the pier. It was carried underneath the arches. An effort was made to find Breslin's body by means of grappling irons. Healey was twenty-one years old, and lived at No. 157 Fighth-st., Jersey City. Breslin, who was twenty six years old, lived in Thirty-ninth-st., between First and second aves., this city. Both were strong, well-built men.

MAYOR FAGAN SCORES THE POLICE FORCE. The new Common Council of Hoboken organized esterday. Mayor Fagan sent in his inaugural vesterday. After directing public attention to the bad financial condition of the city, and the loose methods which have prevailed, he said the people would have a more forcible reminder than any he could write in the tax levy, which must provide for the return of funds which were diverted from their proper use

He was still more severe on the police force, of which he spoke in part as follows:

There is no department in our city to which the attention of the public has been so often called as the Police Department. This branch of our service should be efficient in every way. If ever there was department in which personal preferences and politics, injustice and failure, are manifest, it is in this one, and if ever a department needed a thorough reorganization it is this one, for the history of the last few months is fraught with the story of unworthy promotions, unrewarded merit, lax discipline, careless management and the general looseness in cident to the injection of politics into its business. We have seen unworthy men elevated to places which they have earned neither through merit nor service. We have seen the criminal classes of other cities un molested in their nefarious work within our confine We have seen, through official negligence, how it is possible for the department whose sole duty is th enforcement of law to be officially unconscious of the very presence of evil. Only by a thorough reorganiza tion will the injustice of past official acts be made right, and the Folice Department be elevated to that place to which it should rightfully aspire and to which should attain through merit and efficiency."

He complimented the Fire Department highly for He complimented the Fire Department highly for its courage and efficiency, and attributed many of the evils from which the city suffered to careless legislation at Trenton. He also said privately, after the meeting adjourned, that as head of the Police Department he should thoroughly investigate the reports in regard to policy-shops and "green-goods" men, and it he found that the published statements were true he would root them out if he had to reorganize the police force from top to bottom to do it.
